Foreword

Maternal and Child Health Federal/State Partnership Meeting

Celebrating 75 Years of Title V of The Social Security Act

Welcome to the 75th anniversary celebration of Title V of the Social Security Act. Since its enactment in 1935, there have been dramatic improvements in the health of the Nation's mothers and infants. These achievements include significant reductions in infant and maternal mortality, creation of newborn screening programs, technologic and medical advances, improved prenatal care, and the promotion of preventive health services, including immunizations. Through Title V, the Federal government pledged its support of State efforts to extend and improve health and welfare services for mothers and children. Seventy-five years after its establishment, the program continues to operate as the Nation's oldest Federal-State partnership as it strives to meet the health care needs of mothers, infants, children, adolescents, including children and youth with special health care needs, and their families.

This year's Maternal and Child Health Federal-State Partnership Meeting is intended to be a true celebration of the Title V program's rich history and many successes. It is a tribute to all the Nation's Maternal and Child Health leaders whose vision, dedication and compassion have made the program what it is today. You should take pride in what has been accomplished! While we commemorate the spirit and passion of the Nation's early Maternal and Child Health leaders, we also celebrate the new vision, renewed commitment and promise that our emerging leaders bring to the maternal and child health field. The future looks bright!

While we take this opportunity to reflect on our many achievements, we also recognize that many challenges remain. Disparities in health outcomes among population groups and maternal and infant mortality continue to be serious public health problems. Greater improvement in rates of immunization and breastfeeding is needed. Injury remains a leading cause of death among children and adolescents. Mental health and domestic violence increasingly threaten the well-being of our Nation's families. Shortages in health care providers pose additional barriers in assuring that all maternal and child health populations have access to quality health care services.

Congratulations on your successes! I thank you for your partnership, and I look forward to working with you as we continue the commitment that was initiated 75 years ago with the passage of Title V of the Social Security Act.

Peter C. van Dyck, M.D., M.P.H.

Associate Administrator for Maternal and Child Health
